

4-core drop fiber optic cable manufacturer

AI Overview

Leading manufacturers of four-core drop fiber optic cables include Gcabling, OMC Cable, Jera Fiber, and CommScope, offering indoor/outdoor and FTTH solutions. Key Manufacturers

1. Gcabling Gcabling is a prominent Chinese manufacturer specializing in optical fiber cables, including 4-core drop cables suitable for both indoor and outdoor applications. They provide a wide range of optical cables and support OEM/ODM customization for specific network requirements.
2. OMC Cable OMC Cable offers custom fiber optic solutions with flexible fiber counts, including 4-core cables. They provide various jacket materials (PVC, LSZH, armored), pre-terminated connectors (SC, LC, ST, MPO), and exact cable lengths. OMC Cable serves telecom operators, ISPs, and structured cabling companies worldwide, with CE, ROHS, and CPR certifications.
3. Jera Fiber Jera Fiber manufactures the GJYXFCH FTTH 4-core drop cable, a figure-8 self-supporting cable designed for last-mile installations. They also produce related accessories like splice closures, termination boxes, and clamps. Their products are ISO9001 certified and exported to over 30 countries.
4. CommScope CommScope provides a comprehensive line of fiber optic cables, including indoor/outdoor and fire-rated options. While they focus on broader fiber solutions, they offer high-quality 4-core drop cables suitable for FTTH and enterprise networks.

Considerations When Choosing a Manufacturer

- Certifications: Ensure compliance with CE, ROHS, CPR, or ISO standards for quality and safety.
- Customization: Some manufacturers allow custom fiber counts, jacket materials, and pre-terminated connectors.
- Deployment Environment: Select cables rated for indoor, outdoor, or hybrid use depending on installation conditions.
- Support and Accessories: Manufacturers like Jera Fiber provide complementary installation a...
