

What are some brands of optical module equipment

AI Overview

Several leading brands provide equipment and systems for manufacturing optical modules, including QED Technologies, Satisloh, Jenoptik, ZEISS, Optopax, and Asphericon. Key Equipment Manufacturers QED Technologies International offers precision polishing and metrology systems for optics manufacturers, including lapping and polishing machinery, consumables like diamond slurries, and systems for glass, plastic, crystals, IR, semiconductor, and fiber optics production. Satisloh specializes in machine manufacturing for ophthalmic and precision optics, providing solutions for spheres, aspheres, freeform surfaces, and other complex geometries. Jenoptik develops high-precision optical systems and microoptics for semiconductor equipment, covering the spectral range from deep ultraviolet to far infrared. Their equipment supports beam shaping, steering, and splitting, as well as high-end objective lens production. ZEISS manufactures complex optical modules and systems, integrating optics, mechanics, and electronics. Their solutions are used in photogrammetry, materials processing, wafer inspection, and industrial measurement technology, with custom testing and evaluation tools for high-precision applications. Optopax provides OEM manufacturing services for custom optics and imaging solutions, including lens elements, precision lens assemblies, AI-enabled camera modules, and fully integrated multimodal imaging systems. They offer end-to-end production, assembly, calibration, and quality assurance, with facilities in the USA, China, and Malaysia. Asphericon is a recognized specialist in asphere manufacturing, using advanced MRF polishing and SSI metrology technologies for high-precision optical components. Other notable companies in the optical manufacturing space include Blue Ridge Optics, CNEPO, Corning Tropol, Danyang D...
